

Dietetic Technicians & Nutrition Managers

Median hourly earnings:
$22.24

Median annual earnings:
$46,980

Occupation Description

Dietetic Technicians and Nutrition Managers assist dietitians in the provision of food service and nutritional programs. Under the supervision of dietitians, they may plan and produce meals based on established guidelines, teach principles of food and nutrition, or counsel individuals. Nutrition Managers plan food and nutrition programs, supervise meal preparation, and oversee the serving of meals. They prevent and treat illnesses by promoting healthy eating habits and recommending dietary modifications.

Education and Training Needed

- Post-secondary vocational award needed

Training Providers

Howard University – Division of Allied Health Sciences

Sixth and Bryant St, NW
Washington, DC 20059
(202) 806-7565

Certificate of Verification in Dietetics

This three-semester long, verification program prepares individuals to meet practicum requirements for dietetic registration.

Northern Virginia Community College – Annandale Campus

8333 Little River Turnpike
Annandale, VA 22003-3796
(703) 323-3000

Associate's in Hospitality Management: Nutrition Management Specialization

This two-year program is designed to prepare students for entry-level management positions in nutrition-related food service settings. Opportunities include delivery of nutrition services to schools, nursing homes, assisted living and retirement communities, hospitals, restaurants, wellness facilities and community nutrition programs. 65 credit hours are required for completion.

Tuition:

- In-state: $95.60/credit
- Out-of-state: $273.40/credit
- Financial aid is available

Prince George's Community College

301 Largo Rd.

Largo, MD 20774-2199

(301) 341-3090

Certificate of Completion in Pre-Dietetic Studies

This program is designed to allow students to transfer to the only accredited Dietetic Technician program in the state of Maryland (Baltimore City Community College).