

Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) (formerly Food Stamps)

What are Food Stamps?

The Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP, formerly Food Stamps) helps people buy the food they need. SNAP is available to those who are:

- Working for low wages
- Working part-time
- Unemployed
- Receiving TANF or other government assistance payments
- Low-income elderly or disabled
- Homeless

How does it work?

Food stamps are no longer actual stamps; credit is placed onto an EBT card (similar to a debit or bank card), and the money on the EBT card can be used only to buy food, and only at certain locations. Food stamps do not cover a family's total food costs.

The amount of SNAP a family can receive is based on family income and the number of people who live off that income. A family will qualify if all household members receive TANF or SSI. To qualify for food stamps, your assets (savings, investments and possessions, not including your home or car) must be worth: $2,000 or less if you are single; $3,000 if at least one person in the household is disabled or at least 60 years old.

Immigration Status

You do not need to be a US citizen to receive Food Stamps. Food Stamps may be available to legal immigrants who:

- Have lived in the country for 5 years
- Are receiving disability benefits, regardless of when they entered the country
- Are children, regardless of when they entered the country

Non-citizens that are in the US temporarily, such as students, are not eligible. See the US Department of Agriculture's Food Stamp Policy on Immigrants for more information on Food Stamps for alien immigrants.

Note: All applicants must have social security numbers.

Income Limits (10/01/09–9/30/10)

People in Household	Gross Monthly Income*	Net Monthly Income
1	$1,174	$903
2	1,579	1,215
3	1,984	1,526
4	2,389	1,838
